Along with his American girlfriend, Amy (Reese Witherspoon), and her guide, Andrea (Lorenza Guerrieri), Rambo seeks revenge against the Vietnamese army that butchered his men in 1967 during the Vietnam War. Rambo's mentor, Colonel Trautman (Robert John Burke), sends Rambo to Sardinia to assassinate Colonel Vito Restivo (Marcello Mastroianni), who is believed to be responsible for Rambo's fallen men. Before Rambo is able to assassinate Restivo, he is captured by a local Sardinian commander named Luigi (Richard Johnson). Rambo escapes his prison cell and heads for a refuge he had set up in the surrounding mountains. He makes it to the refuge, but Andrea and her group are murdered. Rambo is imprisoned again. For his apparent failure in Restivo's capture, Trautman is reassigned to China. Rambo is given the opportunity to transfer from the prison to a United States Army Special Forces unit in Germany. Rambo is led by Lt. Col. Oliver Mitchell (Hal Holbrook) and Spec. Sgt. Samuel Trautman (Curtis Armstrong). The unit is sent on a secret mission to reclaim three nuclear missiles stolen by the Russian government and hidden in the region of the former Soviet Union. While on this mission, Mitchell is captured. Upon his return to the unit, Rambo learns that Mitchell has been replaced by a lieutenant colonel named William Ostlund (Raymond Cruz), who dislikes Rambo. Rambo is told that he is to be reassigned to West Germany and sent to a secret prison. Rambo leaves Italy after murdering the Sardinian commander at the hideout. He st 82157476af
